

Communication for Professional Learning Communities

Monday, June 28 to Tuesday, June 29, 2010

One of the keys to successful teaching is an environment in which teachers collaborate and learn from one another. This two-day interactive workshop is designed to enable participants to engage in meaningful discussions and build trust in the context of Professional Learning Communities.

Using Marshall Rosenberg's work on Nonviolent Communication (NVC), participants will practise how to fully hear others, how to speak in ways that can be heard, and how to navigate conflict to assist individuals and organizations in fostering growth and learning.

Join communication consultants and NVC coaches Valerie Lanctot-Bedard and Jean-Phillipe Bouchard for this practical approach to communication for Professional Learning Communities.

5 reasons to attend this workshop

- Optimize your learning teams
- Empower discussions in course/grade planning teams
- Provide effective feedback to students and colleagues
- Conduct efficient meetings
- Move beyond your fear of conflict

Date:

Monday, June 28 to Tuesday, June 29, 2010

Time:

8:30 am – 3:30 pm

Cost:

$250 (Cost includes all materials, breakfast, lunch and snacks)

Location:

Havergal College
1451 Avenue Road, Toronto, Ontario, Canada

To Register:

Please call Audrey Lake at 416.483.3843, ext. 6704

